(POST DATE 12.1.11)

POSITION: RAW MATERIAL COMMODITY BUYER

A Southern California aerospace manufacturer is seeking a dynamic person to procure/negotiate long and short term raw material agreements including pricing, quality, lead-time and mode of shipment for both military and commercial grades of metal. Knowledge of castings, forgings and contract manufacturing is a plus.

The successful candidate will:

- Have longstanding relationships with both mills and stocking distributors throughout the industry, domestically a must, internationally a plus
- Have deep knowledge of historical and current metal commodity price index trends
- Exceed performance objectives by developing and executing comprehensive raw material sourcing strategies
- Be capable of communicating concisely at all levels inside and outside the company
- Be a sound negotiator
- Be action oriented with a record of achieving business goals
- Be a strategic thinker that utilizes creative and innovative problem solving approaches to achieve key company procurement goals
- Have high personal and professional integrity
- Be self-starting, highly organized, outgoing with excellent people skills

We work in a manufacturing environment and on time deliveries are at the top of our priority list, and they should be on top of yours too. Knowledge of computer software such as Word, Excel and ERP is a must. The opening is at our Inglewood facility.

We offer commensurate salary along with vacation pay, voluntary 401K, subsidized medical coverage and optional dental coverage. We also offer a pleasant working environment in a privately owned entrepreneurial setting. Experience in this kind of setting while performing similar tasks with a sense of urgency is a definite plus.
